

Greg Kieliszek - Profile

Greg is the founder and resident Photo Restoration Artist for DigitalCachet.com. A Vietnam Veteran, he has been passionate about photography for more years than he cares to admit. Rarely seen without a camera in his hands, he learned about dark room film processing and photo manipulation in an Air Force photo lab, and later earned a B.S. and M.S. in Computer Science (with honors) prior to a career in Healthcare Information Technology. But even in that role, he maintained a strong involvement with imaging on both a personal as well as professional level. At one point, he took advantage of an opportunity to work with a medical center pathology department to capture and prepare microscope slide images for Tumor Board Power Point presentations. It was the opportunity to learn about an entirely different use for Photoshop that energized him. Greg ultimately was recognized for his leadership ability and commitment to quality services and when he retired from that role, he had risen to the position of Vice President & Chief Information Officer for a multi-hospital healthcare system. He now splits his time between photo restoration/preservation or multimedia projects and teaching computer related classes at a nearby community college.

Greg has been working with the tools of digital photo restoration since the early days of Adobe Photoshop. He's been actively restoring images for family and friends for well over ten years. DigitalCachet.com is his opportunity to focus all his energy on a true labor of love. Greg is a perfectionist at heart, and his finished work will clearly demonstrate that. He will certainly enjoy speaking with you about your vision for the images you care about.

Greg is very serious about the issue of image preservation. Important images are slowly dying in countless boxes, drawers, albums, and attics all over the world. As part of the "film" generation, he feels driven to spread the message and help save as many as possible.

The photo to the left is Greg from a slide taken in 1967 near Nha Trang Air Base, RVN. Greg scanned this slide, cleaned it up and restored its original color.

Thank you for your interest in DigitalCachet.com. We hope to do business with you soon.
